What I want young women and girls to know is: You are powerful and your voice matters. You're going to walk into many rooms in your life and career where you may be the only one who looks like you or who has had the experiences you've had. But you remember that when you are in those rooms, you are not alone. We are all in that room with you applauding you on.

Optimism is the fuel driving every fight I've been in.

What I want young women and girls to know is: You are powerful and your voice matters.

In the years to come, what matters most is that we see ourselves in one another's struggles.

Let's not throw up our hands when it's time to roll up our sleeves. Not now. Not tomorrow. Not ever.

Surround yourself with smart women, and listen to them. And you'll do just fine.

Even if we wouldn't make the same choices for ourselves, we've got a Golden Rule: mind your own damn business.

I'm always fired up for game day – but I'm more fired up to see young people excited about their future and getting ready to vote.

Growing up, I learned to be generous toward my neighbors, compromise without compromising my values, and to work for the common good.

Kamala Drops By Again

by Emily Dietrich

My daily challenge to myself is to be part of the solution, to be a joyful warrior in the battle to come.

One of my mother's favorite sayings was "Don't let anybody tell you who you are. You tell them who you are."

Our unity is our strength, and our diversity is our power. We reject the myth of "us" vs. "them."
We are in this together.

Dream with ambition, lead with conviction and see yourselves in a way that others may not simply because they've never seen it before.
